

Music and entertainment law blog | Entertainment law firm Crefovi

by Crefovi - Friday, September 07, 2012

<http://crefovi.com/london-law-firm-for-creative-industries-faqs/crefovi-blogs/london-music-law-firm-crefovi-music-law-blog/>

London entertainment law firm Crefovi is delighted to bring you this music and entertainment law blog, to provide you with forward-thinking and insightful information on hot business and legal issues in the music and entertainment sectors

London entertainment and media law firm for the creative industries Crefovi advises, in particular, the fashion and luxury goods sectors, the music sector, film sector, art sector & high tech sector.

We support our clients, who all work in the creative industries, in London, Paris and globally, in finding the best solutions to their various legal issues relating to business law, either on contentious or non-contentious matters.

Annabelle Gauberti, founding partner of London entertainment and media law firm for the creative industries Crefovi, is also the president of the International association of lawyers for creative industries \(ialci\). This association is instrumental in providing very high quality seminars, webinars & brainstorming sessions on legal & business issues to which the creative industries are confronted.

Crefovi has a roster of music clients, ranging from music artists to record labels, and is a regular attendee of, and speaker at, entertainment business events, such as MIDEM, SXSW, Comic Con, The Cannes Film Festival & seminars organised by AIM, BPI, MPA and SACEM.

London entertainment law firm Crefovi believes that, due to exponential streaming of entertainment content, the music and film industries have radically and irrevocably changed in the last five years and that it is time for the entertainment sector to take stock and foster mutually beneficial partnerships between the music and film world, high tech companies and famous brands making their mark in the consumer goods & retail arena. Crefovi is there to support its entertainment clients in achieving this delicate balance in a fast-evolving environment.

ERROR: Blog-in-Blog shortcodes can only be used in pages, not posts.

---

PDF generated by Crefovi