London music law firm Crefovi delighted to attend British Recorded Music Industry BPI trade mission in France at SACEM on 14 and 15 May 2013

The aim of the mission is to support UK music companies grow their knowledge of the unique and very special current French music market, and meet and network with French music executives.

While the French music market is very close to the UK, geographically, it is very different as far as business is concerned. The mission will provide important insight into this valuable market.

The two-day programme includes panels, presentations and keynote interviews. Speakers will come from all walks of the industry including: labels, publishers, distribution (physical and digital), licensing, retail, synch, live, media, new media business and marketing.

The mission will take place at SACEM's very impressive home overlooking the river Seine.

London music law firm Crefovi specialises in advising musical artists, music production companies, record labels (majors or independent), royalties collecting societies, music tech startups and companies as well as brands interested in partnerships and collaborations with musical artists.

London music law firm Crefovi advises clients in France, the UK and globally on all business and legal issues relating to the music sector.

Crefovi attends all major music trade shows worldwide, to network, present legal and business issues relevant to the music industry.

Annabelle Gauberti, founding partner of Crefovi, will tweet her impressions and pictures on @crefovi, so please stay in tune with Crefovi on Twitter.
