

Law of luxury goods & fashion law blog | Fashion law firm Crefovi

by Crefovi - Fri, Sep 07, 2012

<https://crefovi.com/knowledge-library/law-blogs/law-of-luxury-goods-fashion-law-blog/>

London fashion law firm Crefovi is delighted to bring you this law of luxury goods & fashion law blog, to provide you with forward-thinking and insightful information on the business and legal issues for the fashion and luxury sectors.

London fashion law firm Crefovi has been practising the law of luxury goods & fashion law since 2003, in London, Paris and internationally. Crefovi advises a wide range of clients, from young fashion entrepreneurs in search of financing, to mature luxury houses in need of legal advice to negotiate and finalise licensing or distribution agreements and/or to enforce their intellectual property rights.

Annabelle Gauberti, founding partner of London fashion law firm Crefovi, regularly lectures on the law of luxury goods & fashion at the Institut de la Recherche sur la Propriété Intellectuelle \(IRPI\), as well as to the Master and MBA students enrolled in HEC Luxury Certificate and to the students of the top master Luxury, Innovation & Design of the University Marnes la Vallée. These courses and lectures are an important testimony to the recognition of the legal discipline that is the law of luxury goods & fashion.

Crefovi has industry teams, built by experienced lawyers with a wide range of practice and geographic backgrounds. These industry teams apply their extensive industry expertise to best serve clients' business needs. One of the industry teams is the Consumer products & retail department, which curates this law of luxury goods & fashion law blog below for you.

ERROR: Blog-in-Blog shortcodes can only be used in pages, not posts.

---

PDF generated by Crefovi