London intellectual property law firm Crefovi has a Patent Litigation Practice, which is comprised of a deep bench of respected, courtroom-tested lawyers with experience in key patent venues in Europe.

London intellectual property law firm Crefovi is able to field a legal team led by experienced trial counsel for any patent matter, large or small, in several European venue and other venues around the world.

London intellectual property law firm Crefovi has a European footprint, which provides clients with a distinct advantage particularly when faced with complex controversies involving technologies developed around the world. London intellectual property law firm Crefovi has a team of patent lawyers, who also have vast experience with mediations, arbitrations and other forms of alternative dispute resolution, and have frequently achieved successful results with these methods as an alternative to protracted and expensive litigation.

The most favorable settlements are often achieved by conveying a command and focus from the outset and demonstrating a preparedness to go to trial — and win. London intellectual property law firm Crefovi's lead trial counsel commit to the case from day one and are hands-on in actively developing the case strategy, analyzing the strengths and weaknesses of case, evaluating potential opportunities for resolution and preparing the case for trial. Because of this targeted and focused approach, London intellectual property law firm Crefovi is able to identify key trial issues early and avoid wasteful litigation tasks such as unnecessary discovery and motion practice. Crefovi's trial-focused approach avoids wasteful litigation, promotes efficiency and drives results.
