London technology transactions law firm Crefovi and its Technology Transactions Practice assist clients with the acquisition, development, protection, exploitation, licensing and sale of technology.

Leveraging resources for technology-related matters

With experienced Technology Transactions Practice lawyers deployed in Europe and through its global network of local counsels, Crefovi is able to handle virtually any technology-related transaction, joint venture or strategic alliance anywhere in the world. Practice lawyers work together seamlessly across geographic boundaries, marshalling the firm's varied resources to meet specific client needs.

Practice lawyers' in-depth knowledge of the technology markets enables the firm to work with its clients to identify, conceptualise and develop creative solutions to the business and legal issues that arise in the course of a complex technology transaction. London technology transactions law firm Crefovi emphasises practical solutions to complex technology transactions and covers virtually all legal specialties in the world's major technology markets.

Broad-based knowledge and expertise

The Technology Transactions Practice of Crefovi has created and continually uses more efficient, less resource-intensive ways to complete transactions that drive down the timescales and the cost of doing deals. Practice lawyers deliver additional value to clients through seminars and training.

London technology transactions law firm Crefovi has extensive experience advising clients on the full range of technology transactions, including:

- Assisted transformation telecommunications
- Data privacy, data transfer and data security
- Distribution and licensing agreements
- IP licensing and exploitation
- Regulatory advice
- Systems implementations and integration
- Technology outsourcing transactions

Practice lawyers have experience in each of the various transaction structures and vehicles inherent in complex technology arrangements. Specifically, the practice lawyers are regularly involved in drafting and negotiating services agreements, joint ventures, strategic alliances, share and asset transactions, distribution agreements, reseller agreements, co-branding agreements and other similar go-to-market arrangements.
